THE GET-AWAY

This past weekend, Janet and I took a much-needed vacation from our co-parenting roles. We shipped the kids and the dog off to various and sundry relatives and skipped gleefully out of town to Rehoboth Beach. We were certainly overdue for some time to ourselves. We stayed at the most incredible B&B run by a lovely lesbian couple. I had found it on the web so we were a little skeptical because the last time I found a B&B on the web, it left much to be desired. Among other difficulties, we froze the whole weekend as the owners kept turning off our heat!

Anyway, this place was incredible. It's called The Sea Witch Manor Inn and Spa. It is within walking distance of everything we wanted or needed. (We parked the car when we arrived and didn't touch it again until we left!) We had nothing but positive experiences- from the massages, to the Jacuzzi, to the incredible gourmet breakfasts that held us until dinner. The whole place is filled with antiques and our room, which was incredibly romantic, was no exception. There was no danger of freezing this time as we kept the fireplace going at all times!

So, there we were, having this very romantic getaway weekend in a place that doesn't have a single juice box, toy, or anything kid-sized in sight. And we were loving it! That is, until we took a walk down the boardwalk and realized that we were staring at everybody else's kids! At first, I didn't realize what we were doing. Then, slowly it dawned on me that things like "Aw, isn't she cute" and "How adorable" were coming out of my mouth! We would go into the stores on the boardwalk and realize we were in the children's corner. And, how on earth did we end up in the toy store playing with the glow-in-the-dark goop?

It all culminated in our stop at a coffee house. We ended up talking with two wonderful dads and their two wonderful kids the whole time we were there. We oohed and aahed over their kids. We watched as one of the dads took a picture of their son trying to eat a huge donut covered in sprinkles. I had to stop Janet from taking a picture of him as well, reminding her that he wasn't one of ours! We commiserated about the amount of stuff parents have to carry when traveling with kids. And when we left, I looked around for our giant bag of kid stuff. Of course, it wasn't there.

So, as wonderful as it was to get away for the weekend, it made coming home that much sweeter. The bag of kid stuff doesn't seem as much of a burden anymore.

INTER-FAITH SPIRITUAL SERVICE

Immediately following the festival, Pride LV and "All Together Now," a GLBT ecumenical task force, are sponsoring an inter-faith spiritual service featuring clergy from area congregations which welcome the GLBT community. Muhlenberg College is hosting the event at Moyer Hall beginning at 6:30pm. Rev. Emily Eastwood will deliver the message. Eastwood is featured in the documentary film that follows the service. The film, sponsored by the Reconciled in Christ congregations of the Lutheran Church, is titled "This Obedience" and outlines the struggles of gay clergy. TO VOLUNTEER FOR PRIDE FEST - CONTACT PRIDE

RAGS TO RICHES TAKE THE FIRST STEP by Denise McKelvey

Dear Denise, My partner recently passed away. We had been together for 14 years. I thought we had done the "correct financial partner safeguards." We had a Will, Power of Attorney and a Living Will. I am devastated and exceptionally overwhelmed in having to face not only the loss of my partner, but the layers of paperwork and decision making involved. I am numb. Nothing could have prepared me for this. I had allowed Jeff to handle all of these issues. He would hand me the papers and tell me to "sign here." At this point, I wish I could do it over again. I wish that I would have listened to him explain the differences in mutual funds, annuities and real estate investment trusts and their surrender fees.

The attorney we used makes me feel foolish. How can I make an educated decision, when the terminology is so foreign? The entire probate process is not only horrendous, but expensive. My tax burden, I am told, will be excessive. Every dime I inherit will be taxed. I have to pay individuals to value his jewelry, his car, the antiques we had purchased together and our home, for instance. We had stored US Savings Bonds and jewelry in a Safety Deposit Box. It's all going thru the probate process. The probate process will cost me about 5% of his share of the assets. How can I help other's avoid the same disaster?

Signed, Bereaved

Dear Bereaved, I am very sorry for your loss. We are never prepared for this situation. My thought is to establish a relationship in advance with a competent attorney, accountant or tax preparer and a financial advisor who understands gay estate planning. Everyone should understand the tax ramifications of every investment they own.

Identifying Transfer On Death or "TOD's" on assets which are not jointly owned will avoid probate costs. Income taxes are unavoidable on most assets. The exception being life insurance. Life Insurance has evolved, just like the evolution of gay parenting and adoption. Life Insurance can be a powerful tool in being responsible partners. You need to understand the ramifications of every product you invest in. How will it effect your tax situation today, and down the road? How liquid is the investment?

There is NO "One Way," only "A Way" to deal with your financial situation. As long as the overall picture provided by the professional makes sense, the plan can work.

Completely avoiding taxes or expenses incurred at the passing of a partner, is not possible. Seek advice to understand the ramifications of your decisions. Establish a network of professionals, this does not include co-workers, to help you thru the process. Second opinions are justifiable. Thanks for enlightening others and best of luck to you.

Denise McKelvey is a Financial Advisor for American Express Financial Services, Inc. located at 5000 Tighman St. Suite 127 in Allentown PA. Please send your questions via e-mail to denise.m.mckelvey@aexp.com. Information provided may not be suitable for your specific financial situation.

WELCOME TO PRIDE MONTH 2003

Random Thoughts: #1 Bush declares "We Won The War!!" Because he said so, that's how! Why then did we go on Orange Alert today? Who's gonna tell us when the next war is over? Should I return the yards of plastic and miles of duct tape I bought at Home Depot (aka The Lesbian 7-11)? And will I need the receipt? Cheers to Susan Sarandon (luv her!), Tim Robbins, The Dixie Chicks, George Clooney and others who use their celebrity to raise awareness and ask the questions Bush still hasn't answered.

#2 How big an idiot does one have to be to attempt a connection between sexual relations between two consenting adults in the privacy of their own home and incest or pedophilia?! What kind of state would allow a moron like that to represent them.... oh... hmm... next subject.

#3 To paraphrase the old Connie Francis song, "Where are the Boys?" Sure Queer as Folk is a cable hit and Will & Jack woke up in bed together on the season finale. But boys, that's fiction. With the exception of George Michael (getting caught with his pants down couldn't resist) and Nathan Lane (he was the last to know), in real life the girls have lead the movement for acceptance and tolerance. In the past decade Ellen, Melissa, kd, Martina and Rosie, to name a few, have blown the closet door off and come out, loud and proud. So, either there are NO gay men in hollywood, or..... there really is no way to finish that ridiculous statement. Instead of trying, I suggest we go on an outing.

#4 After flashing your boarding passes and buckling in, please extinguish all non-recreational smokes. Our driver: Tom Cruise, 'cuz he knows all the hot spots. No video cameras. His ego bruises and he sues easily. Over to the right! Look quickly before it passes by! It's Pee-Wee's Playhouse, owned and operated by man-child Paul Reubens. "Come out Pee-Wee! Wanna grab a matinee?" Around the next corner are two lovely homes on either side of the street, both owned by Sean Hayes. Think about it. As we approach Neverland I ponder how do we give Michael Jackson back -- to the straights? And is Justin going to wait until he is washed up and living in his own delusional theme park before he comes out? We will conclude this trip in a later article.

#5 At this time I would like to come out for both Colin Farrell and Ashton Kutcher. Because what they did to me in my dreams the other night no (sober) straight men would do. So, thanks to them (for the sex) and to my boyfriend for understanding (my psychosis).

Of interest-- Look for the in depth Trans articles in the new issues of Teen People and Glamour. I kid you not! Also, check out the not-so-subtle gay themes of X-Men 2 and Bend it Like Beckham. For you not living it, Sex & the City returns next month. Peace, Love & Health (& lots of cosmos!!) during this Pride Month. Till next time-Smoosches!!!

WHAT SHALL WE DO?

Recently, several not-for-profit organizations have asked VFP to carry their event information. Before we do so, we always ask that the organization sign on to the anti-discrimination statement on the VFP back page. All groups that are included in this paper must be supportive of GLBT equal rights. So here's the question for VFP readers. What should we do about an organization that says it supports GLBT rights but is part of a larger organization that does not support GLBT rights?

Here's the situation: The Pennsylvania Shakespeare Festival (PSF) has asked to be listed in the VFP to promote their events. The contact person has told us that the PSF and its board are supportive of GLBT rights. We feel that this is probably true and that the Board of PSF is individually supportive of GLBT rights.

But here's the problem, the PSF is wholly owned and supported by DeSales University. VFP reporters have spoken directly to representatives of DeSales who have made it clear that DeSales is not only not supportive of GLBT rights, they have also said, "We don't have to be supportive because we are exempt."

This is true, DeSales is a Catholic University, and as a religious institution, is exempt from any anti-discrimination law, and therefore is legally allowed to discriminate against GLBT faculty and students. Of course, most Lehigh Valley colleges are not in cities or towns that have anti-discrimination laws, so they too, are free to legally discriminate against GLBT people, if they choose. However, all of those institutions have their own anti-discrimination policies that include sexual orientation, and six out of the seven LV colleges give Domestic Partner Benefits to the same sex partners of faculty and staff.

Anyway, we'd like to know what VFP readers think. We have a situation where a separate board says they are supportive of the GLBT community, but their parent organization is not. Please write in your thoughts on this issue. We'll publish them, or parts of them, in the Pride Festival issue of VFP. Send your thoughts to liztrish@aol.com.

MEANWHILE, AT THE POLLS

David (Earl) Ball takes the prize for, "Most Effort To Get to the Polls," on Primary Day. Earlier in the week David had fallen while fixing a roof and fractured a variety of bones. Bruised, taped and on crutches, he never the less, made his way to his Easton polling place, where he not only voted but asked a Corpora (candidate for Mayor) campaign worker to take a picture of him with his PA-GALA Candidate Guide. Then David expressed his regrets to her that Corpora hadn't had the courtesy to reply to the (PA-GALA) questionnaire and so didn't get his vote.

Let's hope Dan Corpora, who won the Democrat Nomination for Easton Mayor, hears about this and answers the questionnaire positively for the General Election. Phil Mittman, the winner of the Republican nomination for Easton Mayor, did answer the questionnaire and was fairly positive.

SCOTT SAYS

By Scott Laubner

A NIGHT OUT WITH SCOTT

Come see The School for Scandal, the final production of Civic Theatre's 2002-2003 season. Before you start thinking you are going to see Monica Lewinsky teaching a civics lesson, let me tell you about this play. School for Scandal concerns hypocrites and libertines, rumors and lies, gossips, and backstabbers. But before you say this sounds like a typical Saturday night out to me, there's more!

The characters include two brothers, one who for all the world appears honest and virtuous, is actually corrupt and deceitful. The younger brother is a playboy, but he makes no excuses for being a rogue. There is an uncle returning from many years abroad, a middle-aged guardian and his pretty wife, a young woman with a fortune, a gang of drinking buddies, dandies and meddling ladies who intrigue like nobody's business. There is also a wonderful servant played by a brilliant local actor. (Read: me.)

Come see this very contemporary two hundred year old play. The show runs from June 6 through June 21 and the box office is currently taking reservations at 610-432-8943.

PA-GALA ENDORSED CANDIDATES - PRIMARY ELECTION RESULTS

PA-GALA endorsed 31 candidates in the Lehigh Valley Primary election, 25 of those candidates won their party's nominations. One significant race won by PA-GALA votes was PA-GALA endorsed candidate Patti Engler for Allentown District Justice. Many will remember Patti spontaneously speaking in favor of the anti-discrimination ordinance at the City Council meeting last year. She easily won the Republican nomination, but as a crossfired candidate also captured the Democratic nomination by 32 votes. PA-GALA has at least 100 Democrat super-voter votes in that district.

LIZ OUT LOUD 7

COMPARED TO WHERE?

By Liz Bradbury

Here's a true story, picture this....Trish and I go to our polling place on Primary day. We are greeted by a Transgender Ward Captain who is standing at the door. Though she does not always dress as a woman, she is at this time. We exchange greetings and then she goes back to chatting with the other poll workers at her ward's table. By the way, this openly Transgender person was elected by voters as Ward Captain in her ward.

Trish and I proceed to the other side of the room where the table for our ward is. We greet our poll workers. Since we are super-voters (we vote in every election as every GLBTA person should), they greet us in a neighborly way. It happens that at our poll, two of the official workers are a retired Republican married couple, but of course they must be non-partisan while working at the polls.

As I wait for Trish to finish voting, one of the couple chats with me. She knows we are gay activists. She says, "I thought what Santorum said was just awful. I think there should have been much more backlash against him. It was really wrong." I, of course, agree.

As we say, "so long until next time," to all the poll workers, we hear one of them casually, yet loudly, chatting with the Transgender ward captain about the merits of the Stonewall. I am not sure, but I don't think this guy is gay. End of story.

A recent Gallup poll indicates that more than half of Americans believe there should be some kind of legal recognition of same-sex relationships, this was up from 42% just last year. 75% of the US is far more conservative than the LV.

While I was interviewing some of the Judicial Candidates for the PA-GALA Candidate Guide, (we try to talk to all local candidates we endorse to be sure they understand the issues and are answering honestly), I was amused at those who felt they had to tell me just how conservative it is in this area. For one thing, do they think I don't know exactly how conservative it is here? And for another, it's not that conservative here. I always ask them, "Compared to where?" Compared to San Francisco, or Southern Vermont or most college towns? Yeah, those places are more liberal. But we are way less conservative compared to Scranton, or Erie, or Northern Bucks County or Ohio or Utah or most of the South including almost all of Florida or most of the rest of the country.

The phrase "all politics is local" is very very true. If we want to make pro-GLBT change in the Lehigh Valley, we have to continue to work locally. Did you see how few people voted in the Easton Mayor election? Less than 2300 people in a city of 40,000. That's probably less than the entire GLBTA population of Easton. It is pretty obvious that a GLBT block vote could win this election for either of the Mayoral candidates.

In that race, Mittman, the Republican, has said in his PA-GALA questionnaire that he supports the idea of an anti-discrimination ordinance. Corpora, the Democrat nominee, did not answer a questionnaire. Now he has nothing to lose and everything to gain by supporting an ordinance. Grassroots Easton GLBTA residents will have to work on him. This time next year, there could be equal rights in Easton. But it depends on you.

Be out and proud, work for equal rights and vote. Don't waste time insisting that this area is too conservative for more positive change.

SAFE SPACE & SPECTRUM AT LEHIGH

Since the fall semester, students, faculty and staff have joined in over 20 Safe Space events including discussions, panels, movie night, parties and guest speakers... not to mention the events hosted by the newly formed GLBT student group SPECTRUM!

Cecilia Stanton, Assistant Dean of Multicultural Affairs at Lehigh University, who worked with students to organize these groups, has graduated from her Ph.D program and is now moving out of the area. Cecilia did an excellent job in getting things going at Lehigh. Best wishes for the future and let's hope Lehigh will continue with the good work.

TRISH'S COLUMN

By Patricia Sullivan
AVOWED HETEROSEXUALS

When asked at a news conference if he were gay, U. S. Congressman Mark Foley, R-Fla. responded, "There are certain things we shouldn't discuss in public." Sub text: This guy is gay. Why? Because heterosexuals never deny their sexual orientation.

Gay people are critically aware that most heterosexual people talk about their sexual orientation in public all the time. Political candidates and elected officials are no exception. So, just to test this theory, I reviewed the unsolicited glossy paid political advertising mailers I received from candidates in the 2003 Lehigh County Primary Election. Here are the references to sexual orientation quoted directly from those flyers.

Jim Anthony for Judge (R) - Under photo of Anthony with his wife and four children - "Jim Anthony's values are shaped every day by his responsibilities as a husband and the father of a growing family."

Mark Bernstein for (State) Superior Court Judge (D) - Listed under photo of Bernstein and his wife - "Family: Married 33 years to Linda Bernstein. Raised three sons - David, Joseph and William."

Mary J. B. Eidelman for Judge (R) - Next to a picture of Eidelman with her husband and two sons - "...These are the same virtues my husband, Ed, and I have tried to instill in our children."

Patti Engler for District Justice (R) - "Married to Brian R. Engler, Sr. Two children."

Elsbeth Haymon for Allentown School Board (R) - "Married to Steve Haymon. Their son Sam attends William Allen High School."

Gina Kormanik for Allentown School Board (R) - "Parent in Allentown School District."

John Pressmann for District Justice (D) - "family: Husband of the former Deborah Couto, a nurse at Sacred Heart Hospital. Father of three children - Sean 23, Laura 20, and Daniel 17."

Jerry Snyder for Judge (D) - Above photo of Snyder and his family - "After raising two children, Erin Brubaker, 31, and Christopher, 20, Jerry still lives in Allentown with his wife, Diane, and their son, Jerry is also the grandfather of Ryan Brubaker, 9 months."

Of these eleven candidates, eight expressly noted their sexual orientation. Of the remaining three candidates, one merely stated she was a parent, one displayed a photo clearly showing a gold band on her left hand, and one, and only one candidate made absolutely no reference, written or pictorial, flaunting sexual orientation. That candidate, by the way, is openly gay.

The questionnaire PA-GALA sends to school board candidates asks, "Should a teacher be permitted to tell students that he or she is gay or lesbian?" About half the responses say there is never a reason for a teacher to reveal his or her sexual orientation to students. Yet, heterosexual candidates feel it is imperative to reveal their sexual orientation to voters. Does it matter? And if it does, why can't GLBT kids have out GLBT teachers as role models?

I couldn't help but note that one candidate's literature touted not only his wife and four children, but unabashedly mentioned his "growing family." This guy wants me to vote for him but he doesn't even know how to use birth control? Personally, having more than four kids in this economy isn't much of a selling point.

We believe it would improve the quality of life in the Lehigh Valley if all people were equally protected from unfair discrimination based upon actual or perceived: race, color, religion, national origin, ancestry or place of birth, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, marital status, family status, age, disability or use of a guide animal, in the areas of employment, housing, and public accommodation.
